Recent Book Publications in Public Administration

In the framework of the IASIA 2026 Conference in Athens, we are pleased to invite participants to propose recent book publications in the field of public administration for possible discussion during a special panel session.

This initiative seeks to provide a platform for highlighting relevant scholarly and professional contributions published in 2025 or 2026, and to encourage exchange around emerging ideas, debates and developments shaping the field of public administration.

Eligible publications may address any area related to public administration, including governance, public policy, administrative reform, public sector leadership, institutional development, innovation, accountability, service delivery or other related themes.

Participants wishing to propose a book for discussion are kindly invited to submit the following details:

- Title of the book
- Author(s) or editor(s)
- Year of publication
- Publisher
- Book description: A brief summary of the book's main focus, scope and key themes
- Contribution to public administration: A brief explanation of how the book contributes to scholarship, practice, policy, teaching or debate in the field of public administration
- Contact details of the proposing participant

The proposed publication should be directly related to public administration and should contribute to the wider intellectual exchange and professional dialogue of the IASIA community.

Interested participants are invited to submit a concise document with the above details by June 30th, 2026 here

Should you need further information, please visit the conference website or contact us at iasia-conference@iias-iisa.org

We look forward to receiving your proposals and to creating an engaging space for discussion on recent contributions to the field of public administration.
